Foreword.

David Haigh
CEO, Brand Finance

What is the purpose of a strong brand: to attract customers, to build loyalty, to motivate staff? All true, but for a commercial brand at least, the first answer must always be 'to make money'.

Huge investments are made in the design, launch, and ongoing promotion of brands. Given their potential financial value, this makes sense. Unfortunately, most organisations fail to go beyond that, missing huge opportunities to effectively make use of what are often their most important assets. Monitoring of brand performance should be the next step, but is often sporadic. Where it does take place, it frequently lacks financial rigour and is heavily reliant on qualitative measures, poorly understood by non-marketers.

As a result, marketing teams struggle to communicate the value of their work and boards then underestimate the significance of their brands to the business. Sceptical finance teams, unconvinced by what they perceive as marketing mumbo jumbo, may fail to agree necessary investments. What marketing spend there is, can end up poorly directed as marketers are left to operate with insufficient financial guidance or accountability. The end result can be a slow but steady downward spiral of poor communication, wasted resources, and a negative impact on the bottom line.

Brand Finance bridges the gap between marketing and finance. Our teams have experience across a wide range of disciplines from market research and visual identity, to tax and accounting. We understand the importance of design, advertising, and marketing, but we also believe that the ultimate and overriding purpose of brands is to make money. That is why we connect brands to the bottom line.

By valuing brands, we provide a mutually intelligible language for marketing and finance teams. Marketers then have the ability to communicate the significance of what they do, and boards can use the information to chart a course that maximises profits. Without knowing the precise, financial value of an asset, how can you know if you are maximising your returns? If you are intending to license a brand, how can you know you are getting a fair price? If you are intending to sell, how do you know what the right time is? How do you decide which brands to discontinue, whether to rebrand and how to arrange your brand architecture? Brand Finance has conducted thousands of brand and branded business valuations to help answer these questions.

Brand Finance's research revealed the compelling link between strong brands and stock market performance. It was found that investing in highly-branded companies would lead to a return almost double that of the average for the S&P 500 as a whole.

Acknowledging and managing a company's intangible assets taps into the hidden value that lies within it. The following report is a first step to understanding more about brands, how to value them and how to use that information to benefit the business.

The team and I look forward to continuing the conversation with you.

Belgian Brands Stand to Lose 15% of Brand Value Following COVID-19 Pandemic.

- + Top 10 most valuable Belgian brands stand to lose up to 15% of brand value following devastating COVID-19 pandemic
- + KBC retains title of Belgium's most valuable brand for 5th consecutive year, brand value €3.9 billion
- + BDO is nation's fastest growing, closing gap behind KBC, brand value up an impressive 30%
- + In contrast, Stella Artois is fastest falling, down 11% to €1.4 billion
- + Telenet claims title of Belgium's strongest brand, Brand Strength Index (BSI) score of 80.4 out of 100

Executive Summary.

The brand value of the world's 500 biggest companies, ranked in the Brand Finance Global 500 2020 league table, could fall by an estimated €936 billion as a result of the Coronavirus outbreak.

Brand Finance has assessed the impact of COVID-19 based on the effect of the outbreak on enterprise value, compared to what it was on 1st January 2020. Based on this impact on enterprise value, Brand Finance estimated the likely impact on brand value for each sector. The industries have been classified into three categories – limited impact (0% brand value loss), moderate impact (up to 10% brand value loss), and heavy impact (up to 20% brand value loss) – based on the severity of enterprise value loss observed for the sector in the period between January and March 2020.

The analysis shows that the top 10 most valuable Belgian brands from the Brand Finance Belgium 10 2020 ranking could lose up to 15% of brand value cumulatively, a drop of €3 billion compared to the original valuation date of 1st January 2020.

KBC claims top spot for 5th consecutive year

KBC has defended its title of Belgium's most valuable brand for the fifth consecutive year, but only recorded a slight increase in brand value, up 2% to €3.9bn. 2019 marked a turbulent year for the bank as it navigated alleged involvement in a money laundering scandal. The bank has however adapted to the uncertainty in the sector by conducting efficiency measures to improve customer service by streamlining its workforce over the next 3 years.

The banking sector is certainly familiar with being scrutinised closely. KBC no doubt has a significant challenge ahead of it to repair its reputation after recent accusations. This, paired with the unprecedented level of uncertainty surrounding the global economy as COVID-19 enthralls the world, puts both banks globally and at home in Belgium in a challenging position.

Richard Haigh
Managing Director, Brand Finance

The only other bank in the ranking, Belfius, has recorded a similarly modest uplift in brand value, up 1% to €1.4 billion, staying in 6th place.

Belgian banks, like many other banks across the world, have been suffering as a result of the fragile global economic and political landscape. With the banking sector in the heavy impacted bracket in our COVID-19 analysis, equating to a potential 20% brand value loss, the road ahead looks similarly rocky.

BDO inches closer to top spot

In second place, and closing the gap behind longstanding leader KBC, BDO is the fastest growing brand in the ranking, recording an impressive 30% brand value increase over the course of 2019 to €3.7 billion. The global accounting and consultancy network firm celebrated double digit growth last year, a testament to the brand's commitment to both organic expansion and its solid M&A activity, with the brand closing 20 mergers and acquisitions within the first three quarters of 2019.

Focusing on growth, the brand now operates in 167 countries and territories and has increased its headcount by 10% over the last year. Furthermore, with over US$300 million invested in technology and innovation worldwide, and through the continued partnership with Microsoft, BDO Global is ensuring its position as a truly global and innovative brand.

Brand Finance has calculated that commercial services brands are in the moderately impacted bracket and could therefore face up to a potential 10% loss in brand value as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Stella falls flat

In contrast, global beer brand Stella Artois is the fastest falling brand in the ranking, dropping 11% to €1.4 billion. Along with its parent company – brewing giant AB InBev (Belgium’s third most valuable brand behind KBC and BDO, at €2.2 billion) – the brand has been negotiating a sharp decline in demand in China, a key market, as the nation faces a slowing economy and tighter alcohol regulations that prohibit sales after 2 AM. Stella Artois, which targets the premium category in China, has suffered further as consumers seek cheaper alternatives.

AB InBev undertook one of 2019’s largest IPOs in an attempt to reduce its mountainous debt pile, following its record acquisition of SABMiller in 2016.

Brand Finance has calculated that beer brands could potentially lose up to 20% of their brand value following the coronavirus pandemic, therefore falling into the heavily impacted bracket. AB InBev have already warned of a significant global sales hit, which started to plummet as Chinese New Year celebrations were cancelled. In March 2020, AB InBev withdrew its 2020 profit forecast due to the unprecedented levels of global uncertainty.

Telenet rings in as nation’s strongest brand

In addition to measuring overall brand value, Brand Finance also evaluates the relative strength of brands, based on factors such as marketing investment, customer familiarity, staff satisfaction, and corporate reputation. Alongside revenue forecasts, brand strength is a crucial driver of brand value. According to these criteria, Telenet (down 2% to €972 million) is Belgium’s strongest brand with a Brand Strength Index (BSI) score of 80.4 out of 100 and a corresponding AAA- brand strength rating.

The brand has been successfully implementing its three-year plan which seeks to win a greater share of the Belgian market through offering superior connectivity and through leveraging its best in class customer service. With 61% of homes across its Flemish and Brussels footprint using Telenet’s network, the brand is certainly moving in the right direction.

Telenet has also celebrated higher CSR scores and has reconfirmed its position as a leader in sustainability, winning multiple awards for its economic, environmental and social performances.

The telecoms industry is one of the few sectors of the economy that should see limited impact as a result of COVID-19. In fact, telecoms brands have the opportunity to embrace the working from home revolution, which has led to extraordinary demand for remote working resources and connectivity.

Top 10 Strongest Brands

Sector Reputation Analysis.

Benchmarking against the best

Every brand owner will want to compare brand equity against immediate competitors and peers. But broader benchmarking against brands across a range of categories provides a more rounded assessment of brand strength.

This perspective is also important as brand categories converge, with new technologies enabling disruption and brands seeking tactical entry into neighbouring categories, like a trusted supermarket offering financial services.

Brand reputation is relatively straightforward to compare across sectors. This year's global sector rankings from our B2C research are similar to the previous wave, but there is some movement with potential implications for future brand strategy.

Reputation dips slightly overall

On a like-for-like basis, reputation scores are lower this year, but only by a very small margin as the average brand score fell from 6.6 to 6.4 out of 10. Categories where a poor reputation is the default position, such as utilities, telecoms, and banks, have failed to convince customers that they are consumer champions – and the global average score reflects overall feelings towards brands: acceptance and appreciation, but rarely love and devotion.

Autos lead the way

Car brands continue to enjoy strong reputations. The sector also ranks first on other indicators, such as recommendation and word-of-mouth sentiment – people like talking about cars and top brands such as Audi (reputation score 7.5/10) and BMW (7.7) remain sought after. At the top of the car brand pinnacle is where you can see true brand desire, and meanwhile there are few instances of brands with a really poor reputation – most cars nowadays are well-designed and equipped.

Importantly, the category enjoys a good reputation for being innovative – allowing century-old brands to be well-positioned to withstand the enormous disruption in mobility expected in the coming decade.

Sectors Ranked by Reputation

Metric	Top Sector

OVERALL STAKEHOLDER EQUITY	 TECH

Tech halo shining less brightly

Consumers continue to hold the tech sector in high regard, even though reputation scores have fallen slightly. In part, any decline may be because issues in the public spotlight are finally impacting the reputation of some industry giants. Reputation scores for Facebook (6.3) and Uber (5.7) are all lower by 0.5 points, and Huawei (6.2) is under the global spotlight.

Nevertheless, brands such as YouTube (7.8), Google (7.7), and Netflix (7.4) continue to enjoy strong reputations and buzz – most brands would love to be in their position.

Retail & Restaurants

Supermarkets and casual dining brands have moderately positive reputations overall, but these two are category leaders in terms of delivering value for money. Consumers are well aware that brands in these categories are out to make a profit – but unlike for instance banks, the consumer verdict is that brands such as McDonalds (39% 'great value') and Tim Hortons (38%) charge a fair price, though Starbucks (15%) is a notable exception.

Banks still in the red

Banking brands continue to struggle to earn the respect of consumers and are seen as offering poor value for money. However, ratings have generally stabilised – the key challenge is to show growth.

The broader set of scores in our research shows glimmers of opportunity. Banks fare reasonably well on customer service, caring about the community, and for website/app quality. For national and regional banks especially, a community-centred positioning in an age where in many places globalisation is being rejected, may be worth considering.

COVID-19 Global Impact Analysis.

Companies likely to lose up to €1tn in Brand Value as Direct Impact of COVID-19 Outbreak, Effects to be Felt Well into Next Year.

- + Worst hit industries: aviation, oil & gas, tourism & leisure, restaurants, retail
- + Brand Finance has measured levels of business impact categorised by: limited impact, moderate and worst hit
- + International aviation, airlines and airports to be worst affected by Coronavirus outbreak, with measures of social distancing, closure of borders, advice against travel
- + Home delivery apps, online video conferencing platforms, digital media see surge in demand from remote working revolution

Brand Value at Risk

Up to €1 trillion estimated brand value loss from COVID-19 globally

The brand value of the world's biggest companies is set to drop by an estimated €1tn as a result of the Coronavirus outbreak, with the aviation sector being the most affected. The 2003 SARS outbreak, which infected about 8,000 people and killed 774, cost the global economy an estimated €50 billion. As of 14th April 2020, there have been 1,955,648 cases and 123,436 deaths of COVID-19 confirmed worldwide. Global spread has been rapid, with 146 countries now having reported at least one case.

Brand Finance has assessed the impact of the COVID-19 outbreak based on the effect of the outbreak on Enterprise Value, compared to what it was on 1st January 2020. Based on this impact on Enterprise Value, Brand Finance estimated the likely impact on Brand Value for each sector. The sectors have been classified into 3 categories based on the severity of Enterprise Value loss observed for the sector in the period between January and March 2020.

The COVID-19 pandemic is now a major global health threat and its impact on global markets is very real. Worldwide, brands across every sector need to brace themselves for the Coronavirus to massively affect their business activities, supply chain and revenues in a way that eclipses the 2003 SARS outbreak. The effects will be felt well into 2021.

David Haigh,
CEO, Brand Finance

Work from home revolution

Brands offering in-home or remote working solutions have observed an immediate uptick in demand, as multiple Zoom online video conferencing platform prompted huge demand for workable solutions

Food delivery apps Deliveroo and UberEats, now offering contact-free delivery options whereby a food delivery is conveniently left on your doorstep so as not to encourage contact between customer and delivery driver, have also seen a huge surge in demand for their services.

Media and film industry feel effects

Film production and promotion schedules have been affected by the outbreak, with Disney pushing back the release of its remake of Mulan as well as The New Mutants, part of the X-Men franchise. The effects of social distancing have meant more viewers watching TV, however Netflix has had to suspend production on all scripted series and films in the US and Canada. As massive televised sports events and festivals such as Glastonbury being cancelled, TV executives will be feeling the strain of providing fresh and watchable content.

However it is not all doom and gloom. Some brands will fare better under COVID-19: Amazon, Netflix, WhatsApp, Skype, BBC and BUPA are all booming.

Definitions.

Brand Value

[AB InBev]

+ Enterprise Value
The value of the entire enterprise, made up of multiple branded businesses.

Where a company has a purely mono-branded architecture, the 'enterprise value' is the same as 'branded business value'.

[Stella Artois]

+ Branded Business Value
The value of a single branded business operating under the subject brand.

A brand should be viewed in the context of the business in which it operates. Brand Finance always conducts a branded business valuation as part of any brand valuation. We evaluate the full brand value chain in order to understand the links between marketing investment, brand-tracking data, and stakeholder behaviour.

[Stella Artois]

+ Brand Contribution
The overall uplift in shareholder value that the business derives from owning the brand rather than operating a generic brand.

The brand values contained in our league tables are those of the potentially transferable brand assets only, making 'brand contribution' a wider concept. An assessment of overall 'brand contribution' to a business provides additional insights to help optimise performance.

[Stella Artois]

+ Brand Value
The value of the trade mark and associated marketing IP within the branded business.

Brand Finance helped to craft the internationally recognised standard on Brand Valuation – ISO 10668. It defines brand as a marketing-related intangible asset including, but not limited to, names, terms, signs, symbols, logos, and designs, intended to identify goods, services or entities, creating distinctive images and associations in the minds of stakeholders, thereby generating economic benefits.

Brand Strength

Brand Strength is the efficacy of a brand's performance on intangible measures, relative to its competitors.

In order to determine the strength of a brand, we look at Marketing Investment, Stakeholder Equity, and the impact of those on Business Performance.

Each brand is assigned a Brand Strength Index (BSI) score out of 100, which feeds into the brand value calculation. Based on the score, each brand is assigned a corresponding rating up to AAA+ in a format similar to a credit rating.

Analysing the three brand strength measures helps inform managers of a brand's potential for future success.

Marketing Investment
 Widely recognised factors deployed by marketers to create brand loyalty and market share.

Stakeholder Equity
 Perceptions of the brand among different stakeholder groups, with customers being the most important.

Business Performance
 Quantitative market and financial measures representing the success of the brand in achieving price and volume premium.

Marketing Investment

- A brand that has high Marketing Investment but low Stakeholder Equity may be on a path to growth. This high investment is likely to lead to future performance in Stakeholder Equity which would in turn lead to better Business Performance in the future.
- However, high Marketing Investment over an extended period with little improvement in Stakeholder Equity would imply that the brand is unable to shape customers' preference.

Stakeholder Equity

- The same is true for Stakeholder Equity. If a company has high Stakeholder Equity, it is likely that Business Performance will improve in the future.
- However, if the brand's poor Business Performance persists, it would suggest that the brand is inefficient compared to its competitors in transferring stakeholder sentiment to a volume or price premium.

Business Performance

- Finally, if a brand has a strong Business Performance but scores poorly on Stakeholder Equity, it would imply that, in the future, the brand's ability to drive value will diminish.
- However, if it is able to sustain these higher outputs, it shows that the brand is particularly efficient at creating value from sentiment compared to its competitors.

Brand Valuation Methodology.

Brand Finance calculates the values of the brands in its league tables using the Royalty Relief approach – a brand valuation method compliant with the industry standards set in ISO 10668.

This involves estimating the likely future revenues that are attributable to a brand by calculating a royalty rate that would be charged for its use, to arrive at a 'brand value' understood as a net economic benefit that a licensor would achieve by licensing the brand in the open market.

The steps in this process are as follows:

- 1 Calculate brand strength using a balanced scorecard of metrics assessing Marketing Investment, Stakeholder Equity, and Business Performance. Brand strength is expressed as a Brand Strength Index (BSI) score on a scale of 0 to 100.
- 2 Determine royalty range for each industry, reflecting the importance of brand to purchasing decisions. In luxury, the maximum percentage is high, in extractive industry, where goods are often commoditised, it is lower. This is done by reviewing comparable licensing agreements sourced from Brand Finance's extensive database.
- 3 Calculate royalty rate. The BSI score is applied to the royalty range to arrive at a royalty rate. For example, if the royalty range in a sector is 0-5% and a brand has a BSI score of 80 out of 100, then an appropriate royalty rate for the use of this brand in the given sector will be 4%.
- 4 Determine brand-specific revenues by estimating a proportion of parent company revenues attributable to a brand.
- 5 Determine forecast revenues using a function of historic revenues, equity analyst forecasts, and economic growth rates.
- 6 Apply the royalty rate to the forecast revenues to derive brand revenues.
- 7 Brand revenues are discounted post-tax to a net present value which equals the brand value.
